

Credit for Prior Learning

Credit for prior learning (CPL) provides students the opportunity to receive course credit for demonstrated competence based on prior learning and experiences. CPL contributes to student success by shortening the time required to complete a credential while also saving the student money.

- In most instances students are only eligible for CPL prior to the start of the course for which they are attempting to receive credit. Once a student has attempted a specific course, they are no longer eligible to receive CPL for that course. An exception is outlined for Institutional Challenge Exams as noted within this procedure in Section I.c.iv.
- Academic Affairs is responsible for determining which courses are available for CPL and the criteria to obtain course credit.
- The NWCCD Credit for Prior Learning Handbook provides detailed instructions on the process to obtain advanced placement (or CPL) credit.

The following options are available for CPL:

1) Credit by Examination

- a) Advanced Placement Exam from high school course work for department/ division approved courses.

- c) Institutional Challenge Exams may be developed at the discretion of the department/division chair/director if there is no approved CLEP exam available.
- i) Requests for challenge exams should be initiated with the instructor, who will secure the signatures of the department/division chair and Dean/Assistant Vice President of Academic Affairs.
 - ii) A challenge examination may not be attempted more than once.
 - iii) A student who has failed to earn credit in an attempted college course may not receive credit by examination in the same course.

- iv) Students attempting credit by examination for courses in which they are currently enrolled must do so before they have completed no more than 20% of the course.
- v) Challenge exams passed with a score of 70% or better will receive a Satisfactory (S) grade for the course. This grade will not affect the student's GPA.

- vi) Only satisfactory examination results are posted on the student's permanent record.

- d) DANTES Standardized Subject Tests (DSST) are administered for military and veteran students.

- e) The transcript entry following successful completion will show the course number, name, number of credits, semester challenged, test origination (i.e., CLEP, Institutional) and the letter grade "S."

2) Industry Certification

- a) Students holding certain certifications have demonstrated that they have acquired the knowledge and skills required for NWCCD courses.

- b) Students holding such industry certifications are eligible to receive NWCCD credit for designated courses. In order for any course to qualify, it is understood that all minimum student learning outcomes established for the course in the common course syllabus must be met through the certification process.

- c) The Registrar is authorized to award equivalent credit to students holding such certifications. In consultation with the Registrar, the faculty and division chair (and/or director) in the discipline area in which the certifications have been earned will annually review our courses to determine which courses appropriately match industry certifications. In order for these decisions to be in place by the beginning of any academic year, this review shall occur before the end of the spring semester of the preceding academic year.

- d) Credit will be awarded only for current certifications to be determined by the instructor(s) of the affected courses with the approval of the division chair. No credit will be given for certifications that have expired.

- e) Students must provide appropriate documentation verifying their certification.

3) Portfolio Submission providing evidence and artifacts demonstrating that each student learning outcome has been met for the desired course.
