New Student Orientation

An orientation program is important to help new students learn about NWCCD policies, procedures, processes, and resources. New students will complete an orientation program by the end of their first semester, preferably before the term begins.

- The Division of Student Affairs is responsible for implementing new student orientation.
- Failure to complete the orientation program will result in a registration hold until the orientation requirements are complete.
- Non degree-seeking students are not required to participate in the orientation program.
- High school students who are enrolled with dual or concurrent status will complete an orientation that meets their specific needs.
